ジャングル大帝

レオ 編

In the jungle at the foot of the Ruenzori mountain range on the border of Congo and Uganda, there lived a king of the white lions called Panja who reigned over the land and protected weaker animals from the attacks of rapacious human beings. After Panja was killed by hunters, his mate Eliza was taken to a zoo in England on a steamer, aboard which she gave birth to a male cub, Prince Kiba. Eliza told Kiba that he should go back to Africa and take over the throne of his father. Eliza then pushed Kiba overboard. After his escape, the ship met a violent storm and sank to the bottom of the sea together with Eliza. Kiba drifted to the coast of the Arabian Peninsula where a boy named Ken rescued and raised him up.

A year passed. It was rumored that on Mt. Moon, the highest peak in the Ruenzori mountain range, there existed a "moon stone" which was said to radiate super-high-power energy. Dr. Pine and Professor Kibwe organized a search mission to investigate the magical stone. Among the party were Ken and Kiba. When Kiba had first arrived at the jungle, he was a timid and weak lion because he had been brought up by human beings and he disliked a world where ruthless killings were the order of the day. But by and by, he recovered his confidence and finally swore that he would become the King of the jungle just as his father before him had been, and protect his animal friends from human attackers.

(To be continued in Volume II. Written in 1950. Produced in a TV series, "Kiba the White Lion," in 1964. Produced in the animated feature film, "The Jungle Emperor," in 1965)
